To who it may concern,

I would like to stay my opposition to 127-A.

This bill is not needed for the state of Maine.

Once again we are putting the cart before the horse.

Electric cars have their place but mandates on amounts at dealerships should be dictated by supply and demand not a board of environmental activist.

I have no problem with people wanting to own electric vehicles. I do have a problem with government overstepping it's boundaries.

Let the people decide what they want to drive. Let the automotive companies decide what they want to build and sell to the consumer.

127-A is not for Maine.

Kind regards,

Adam Morgan
