It makes no sense to rush EV's and force them on the citizens. They've recently been proven to be useless in our winter storm weather, there isn't enough infrastructure to support them yet. Anyone stuck in one in the cold is more at risk and a news report tonight shows how our guardrails can't handle the crash of heavier vehicles with no engine in the front. Not to mention we're just helping China's economy instead of our own. It's nuts. Have you seen the mountains of batteries accumulating yet? I am totally opposed to this Chapter 127-A
