As an old timer, I guess this rule will have no effect on me. I will be driving my reliable gas vehicles till my inevitable death.

As someone with kids and grandkids, good luck with all electric vehicles. You see, us Mainers live in rural areas, an electric vehicle that isn't close to being proven safe or efficient, will never last in our cold, rural Maine municipalities. Why not do something useful for our residents? Bring the cost of gasoline and heating oil to an affordable level first and then once Mainers can afford to live here, in a State with one of the highest taxation, maybe play around with ideas to help Mainers afford the vehicles, repairs batteries, etc.

Thank you,
Cynthia Moore 1 Fifth St., Waterboro, 04030.
