Please do not take Maine down the path of California as far as EV vehicles go. First of all the Cost of an EV vehicle is out of the reach of most, we do not have the electricity to support this endeavor And again the cost of having a charging station at ones home another costly adventure in spite of the possibility of government help. Do we also know the affects of sitting on top of a lithium battery to the Human body? Also, you say it will help climate change. Well if China and other countries are making these batteries and not a part of the solution than I don't see the point. It has to be a global effort not a USA effort or even a state effort. You are taking the rights and freedoms away from the American people and the people of Maine to choose all for the sake of your political agenda and control.

Enough Said/Let Freedom to Choose Ring,

P.S. Also with the cost of electricity continually going up (my bank is calling to make sure my account has not been hacked due to the increase in my bills being paid, electricity being one of them. A sad day in Maine and in the USA.
