Dear Sir,

I am writing to express my opposition to Chapter 127-A. Instead of mandating what percentage of electric cars must be purchased by the citizens of Maine, the citizens of Maine should determine that through the free market. When electric cars and the infrastructure necessary to support them become good enough, people may buy them. Until then leave us alone. The fact that all this is being subsidized by us is just another over reach of government. It is my money and I will spend it on what I want and it will not be on a car with limited range, slow recharges, and poor performance in cold weather.

Sincerely,
Doug Hein
