People should not be told they must or will have to buy EV. This is nonsensical and just NOT practical for Mainers. Those living in close proximity to towns to purchase groceries and other necessities have an advantage over those of us in far away places in rural Maine. These are expensive to buy, maintain, charging stations will take over parking spots in parking areas. People have to literally hang out in their cars for hours to charge them on trips and inconvenient overall. Hybrid options are a more practical starting point.

Just like with idiotic do not bring my electricity bill down solar panels uglifying our roadsides, WHERE ARE THE LITHIUM BATTERIES BEING DISPOSED OF once they are of no use to the car any longer!??? There is a long way to go with research before your proposed deadline!!! No no no!!
