Maine is not California, and will never be!

An ev might be fine for someone that wants and can afford that tipe of vehicle.
We don't even have the power grid to deal with it, you've got the cart ahead of the horse.
If this would work private industry would be doing it, if people want an electric car or truck let them do it without the government subsidies for the buyer pay out of their own pocket. Instead of using taxation for something that's not fees able.

You can't have all this stuff with out drilling, digging, mining. ECT.

You don't want that, so why do you think that we will be saving the environment?

Collage makes a lot of stupid people.
