I am Mike McClellan and I live in Raymond, Maine. I served in the Maine Legislature - 125th-127th. I am not sure I can come up with new examples, you have not heard of yet, I simply wish to add my resounding NO! To Maine Public Comments against this new law. The easiest example would be the cars that died in the Mid West, last year during a nasty storm. People were stalled for days. These storms happen in Maine enough to cause great concern.

In following the environmental advances, politics and sometime gibberish, Maine is nowhere close to being able to do what you are proposing. The science, studies and facts are clear. My one suggestion would be that if you are willing to put your names on this type of legislation, you should include the information of how anyone in Maine who is adversely affected by this law can sue the people who brought it forward.
