I do not want to be forced directly or indirectly through regulations and high costs to drive an electric vehicle. It makes no sense for the State of Maine to follow the lead of the environmental extremists in California. My family and I drive hybrid and plug in hybrid vehicles which are a great alternative to all electric vehicles. When looking at the big pictures, an electric vehicle mandate in the US is not going to solve the threat of global warming. The real threat is lack of energy security and an open border due to failed democratic policies. If our liberal politicians keep going down this road, my family will relocate to another state that is more friendly to middle class people by implementing common sense solutions to problems that really will have a positive impact on our lives.
