You people are nuts! Did you not see the lines of people waiting at chargers in Chicago? Chargers that will not charge your car when it is too cold out. Even when it is warmer for us, say 32 degrees, these Chargers take twice as long to do the job. My home was without power for 5 days after one storm and 3 days from another. If my required electric car were fully charged at the time I could have gone to work twice in all that time. I was still able to work thanks to fossil fuels. How will you ensure you are not crippling us worse than your stupid ideas from the past have crippled us? Without your stupidity our electric bills would not be as horrible as they already are. Because of you I am paying for solar panels which during the winter in Maine have almost no ability to produce power. You believe technology will advance enough by the time your stupidity takes effect, that we will forget about you. When we are freezing in our homes and cars in Maine we will remember you. If you are so sure the tech you need to justify these idiotic decisions will be there some day, why not just wait? Who is paying you to betray us right now?
